Anagram Pictures' Partner Signs On With International Creative Management, Inc.

Vancouver, B.C. – Andrew Currie, one of the founding partners of Vancouver-based Anagram Pictures, has signed with talent and literary agency International Creative Management, Inc. (ICM) as a writer/director. ICM is one of the world's largest and most prestigious literary and talent agencies with offices in Los Angeles, New York and London.

"Andrew is a great writer and director," said Anagram President Blake Corbet. "His most recent work on FIDO, which he co-wrote and directed, shows just how talented he is. Having one of the world's best talent agencies represent him is the next step for Andrew and for Anagram in continuing to make great movies. We're very excited about what the future holds."

"As a writer/director, ICM was definitely the right choice of agency," said Currie. "Their ability to bring in projects and materials that inspire my passion for storytelling is very exciting to me. I'm looking forward to a long-term relationship that will really help define me as a filmmaker."

International Creative Management, Inc. (ICM) is one of the world's largest talent and literary agencies, with offices in Los Angeles, New York and London. Formed in 1975 through the merger of Creative Management Associates and International Famous Agency, ICM represents creative and technical talent in the fields of motion pictures, television, publishing, music, live performance, branded entertainment and new media. The company recently raised equity financing from Rizvi Traverse Management and institutional investors to fund strategic growth, and in July, 2006 ICM signed an agreement to acquire literary agency Broder Webb Chervin Silbermann.

Vancouver-based Anagram Pictures (www.anagrampictures.com) is dedicated to the development, financing and production of original, groundbreaking film and television. Anagram is committed to scripts and filmmakers that promote social conscience and innovation. Feature films by Anagram include the highly anticipated FIDO, the critically acclaimed The Delicate Art of Parking, Mile Zero and the made for CTV movie Elijah. With several projects currently in development, Anagram Pictures is one of Vancouver's busiest production houses.
